

Annual Report

2019/20

“We are here,
standing strong,
in our rightful place.”

Over the last two years, Highlander has persevered in the face of the intersecting crises of white supremacist violence, a global pandemic, climate disaster, the failures of the state, the rise of authoritarianism, police violence, and the many other interlocking forms of oppression that impact our staff and the people we serve.

After the March 2019 fire, the outpouring of support from Highlander’s movement family across the region, the United States, and globe meant that we could focus on recovering even while continuing to welcome thousands of people to Highlander for educational work and radical hospitality. The fire required us to quickly adapt and practice resilience, a posture that effectively prepared us for early 2020’s onset of the COVID-19 pandemic and the need to stay distant to keep one another safe. Highlander’s staff responded to the pandemic by pivoting all programming on-line, helping to expand our reach to tens of thousands of new and returning Highlander friends and family. Highlander’s operations continued, providing administrative infrastructure for a robust fiscal sponsorship program, offering a range of movement accompaniment and support services to the uprisings of Summer 2020, and giving extra attention to building democracy in (and beyond) election season and attending to capital improvements of Highlander’s land and buildings.

After the fire, we shared a message inspired by the song, “Solid as a Rock,” with our supporters: “We are here, standing strong, in our rightful place.” That message remains true today. The fire that destroyed our main office did not destroy us or our work. The pandemic has not prevented us from continuing to gather and support our people. White supremacy will not win. Highlander’s mission to be a catalyst for grassroots organizing and movement building is alive and well, and we have been able to thrive because we are held up by a community of care.

In the hours before dawn on March 29, 2019, Highlander staff woke to phone calls and text messages alerting us that our main office building was on fire.

Over the course of the next few hours, staff gathered together on the Hill to be together, support each other, and mourn as firefighters worked to put out the flames.

The night before, Highlander's staff was already planning to build before we ever had anything to rebuild. We had announced in a March 28 Facebook post that we would soon be breaking ground for the Septima Clark Learning Center, our new library, archive, and meeting space.

We went to sleep March 28 with the humble task of carrying Septima Clark's legacy forward, but we woke up to tragedy. So how would we continue to honor Ms. Clark's work while under attack? By staying grounded in our purpose, committing to our healing, and keeping it moving.

Before the fire department even left Highlander that day, staff moved forward with the previously scheduled Central Appalachian Prison Justice Assembly, a gathering of organizers and community leaders from the region who were coming to envision and make plans to fight for a region without prisons, jails, and detention centers. By that evening, close to fifty 21st century Appalachian freedom dreamers were gathered together, reading letters from loved ones locked up in cages, and singing our way toward liberation.

We would soon learn that our office building was a total loss - we lost our files, our server, our personal belongings. We learned that a white supremacist symbol had been found spray painted in our parking lot. While authorities and investigators have revealed no conclusions, Highlander understands the attack as an act of white supremacists who found our work for collective liberation a threat to their motivations of power rooted in hate.

The day of the fire, organizational partners, former directors, and Highlander friends drove up to accompany us in the moment and in the days that followed, to provide community safety, to shepherd our archives stored in other buildings on site to safety, to provide healing justice, and to sit with us in our pain. We received an outpouring of phone calls, emails, and messages of support, from offers of physical labor to gifts of financial support.

Because of you, our work never ceased. Your support meant that we were able to begin and complete construction of the Septima Clark Learning Center. Your care meant that we could move forward with rebuilding our new office building, set to reopen to our staff in Summer 2022. Your dedication to Highlander and the movements we support meant that we were able to take the difficult lessons forged in the fire and share what we learned with movement and our people in the US South and Appalachia during two of the most tumultuous years in recent history.

Today, the work before us is the same. The work cannot stop. Amidst new social crises, piled on top of existing social, economic, and man-made climate nightmares, too many among us wake up to the daily task of overcoming fear and real threats to our abilities to survive, thrive, and build. Grounded in our own experience, we encourage people to address their urgent needs so they can also care for others, to break out of isolation, and to learn from one another about how to analyze the world we have inherited and reshape it into the world we deserve.

Highlander's Main Office before the 2019 fire was a homebase for staff, fiscal sponsors, and guests to do Highlander's behind-the-scenes work and build community in our kitchen, lobby, and porches. We had just given it a new paint job, an updated roof, and better windows in November 2018.

Although the fire and Highlander's recovery were considerable events in 2019, our educational work and programs continued on course. We kept Highlander open to ally groups and others needing facilitation support and hospitality, and we are grateful for their presence and insistence on carrying forward with us. Justice Network, and Black Women ED's in Leadership were just some of the dozens of groups who chose to continue to be in struggle and learning with us on the hill and to accompany us as we navigated a difficult time.

The third and final cycle of the Appalachian Transition Fellowship program successfully came to a planned close in June 2019. Work to inform our next steps in Central Appalachia's economic transitions began immediately after and continued throughout the year. We hosted our annual Children's Justice Camp and our Seeds of Fire Camp in July, welcoming children, youth, and adult allies from across the US South for methodologies trainings, healing spaces, and other opportunities for self-directed learning relevant to the lived experiences and organizing priorities of young people.

Our 87th annual Homecoming in September was a powerful gathering of movement family with an invitation and a calling to our collective liberation and resistance in the face of great challenges, real threats, and grave harm to our communities and people. As a highlight on the Friday of Homecoming weekend, our Economics and Governance program held a “Solidarity Economy in the South” People’s Movement Assembly to identify steps needed to boost a regional network of New Economy practitioners. A report on the gathering and the emerging Solidarity Economy in the South Network would come out in 2020.

The year also saw progress on work long in the making. We broke ground on the new Septima Clark Learning Center in April 2019 and continued to dig into infrastructural needs to steward our sacred space together.

By the year’s end, we had welcomed a new Cultural Organizer to add staff capacity to educate and organize through one of Highlander’s core methodologies.

Throughout the course of 2019, we continued to support grassroots work by sharing our analysis of the attack and others like it to inform broader movement strategies, and we laid the groundwork for a new Community Safety team and program to help protect and defend our communities through practices grounded in mutual aid and harm reduction.

'We Deserve a Country that Values All of Our Lives': Highlander Director Talks COVID, BLM and Racism in America

BY TAYLOR SISK · AUGUST 19, 2020 · 10 SHARES · 16 MINUTE READ

We typically host more than 10,000 people annually at Highlander through our programming, special events like our annual Homecoming, and by opening our doors for groups that stay on site for planning, trainings, and strategy sessions. The year 2020 began that way with a number of special groups, but when COVID-19 forced us to be physically distant, we worked hard to continue bringing people together and creating space for dialogue, healing, and sharing stories and strategies.

Committed to doing our part to keep one another safe during the pandemic, we pivoted on-line quickly and effectively to continue to gather, train, and support thousands of folks through virtual convenings and active network participation. We responded to immediate needs by collecting analysis and resources on the COVID-10 pandemic, with our Community Safety team distributing supplies and health information. Our Communications Team completely transformed our "View from the Hill" newsletter, converting our monthly newsletter to a weekly email distributing emerging information, action items, and ways to organize and access funding and support on the ground.

We also threaded work together from previous years, with January 2020 marking the beginning of a year-long project in follow-up to our Appalachian Transition Fellowship program. Partnering with Dialogue and Design in a listening project and strategic assessment of just transition efforts in Central Appalachia, we set out to explore the values and principles that are guiding this work for the region and sought to identify transformative strategies and solutions to share through case studies. This report will be released later in 2021, and the findings will also inform Highlander's work moving forward to support a just economic transition in the region.

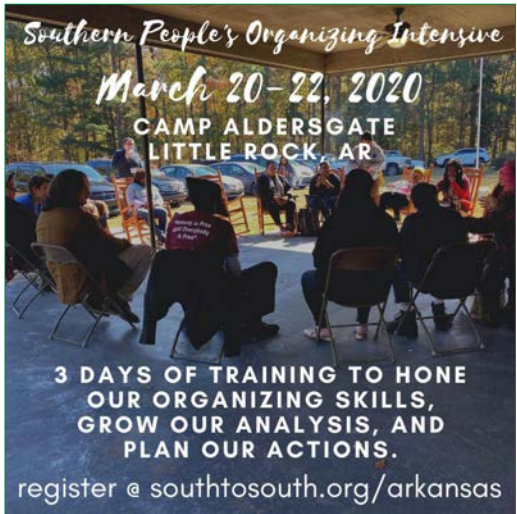

As quarantine arrived in March, we quickly pivoted to gathering people online and meeting immediate needs through mutual aid and healing justice support.

As an anchor member of the Southern Movement Assembly, we provided facilitation support for the online Spring Organizing Intensive March 20-22. We closed out our local organizing trainings with the University of Tennessee Solidarity in Action cohort, a 6-month program that united UT students with community organizers and groups to build solidarity and skills for local movement work, in an online workshop March 28.

As the crisis of the pandemic continued into April, we launched a weekly healing justice space online with Spiritual Soirees every other Wednesday and Highlander Happy Hours on alternating Fridays, supporting participants in building resilience and joy amidst the pandemic. These weekly gatherings continued through October 2020 and were led by our Cultural Organizer Je Naé Taylor. Je Naé also convened an inaugural Cultural Cohort this year, supporting 5 cultural workers in the South who met regularly for skill-sharing and created works in their own communities to engage the question, “What is the recipe for culture in this time?” Their work culminated with a 24-hour event online with the cohort participants sharing the work they had created through the project. The work of the cohort will soon debut on the group’s Recipe for Culture website and with a “cookbook” for movement that shares cultural organizing “recipes”.

We were also proud in April to partner with the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee to honor the 60th anniversary of their founding, with our Co-Executive Director Ash-Lee Woodard Henderson joining an intergenerational panel with SNCC members, "Black Freedom Movement Then and Now: Organizing Traditions," sharing organizing insights, lessons, and stories spanning decades and lifting up strategies from the past to inform the present.

We also launched a series of webinars and workshops on Mutual Aid and solidarity economies, including a "Becoming a Middle Class Traitor" workshop, with an action step for folks to redistribute their stimulus checks to Black-led organizing as part of a joint effort with our partners in the New Economy Coalition. David Ferris with our Economics and Governance programming also launched the "Solidarity Economy in the South" report this year, sharing back the collective analysis built

For those of us who live at the shoreline standing upon the constant edges of decision crucial and alone for those of us who cannot indulge the passing dreams of choice who love in doorways coming and going in the hours between dawns looking inward and outward at once before and after seeking a now that can breed futures like bread in our children's mouths so their dreams will not reflect the death of ours;

For those of us who were imprinted with fear like a faith line in the center of our foreheads learning to be afraid with our mothers' milk for by this weapon this illusion of some safety to be found the heavy-footed hoped to silence us for all of us this instant and this triumph we were never meant to survive.

And when the sun rises we are afraid it might not remain when the sun sets we are afraid it might not rise in the morning when our stomachs are full we are afraid of indigestion when our stomachs are empty we are afraid we may never eat again when we are loved we are afraid love will vanish when we are alone we are afraid love will never return

And when we speak we are afraid our words will not be heard nor welcomed but when we are silent we are still afraid.

So it is better to speak remembering we were never meant to survive. - Audre Lorde

This work expanded with the Solidarity Economy in the South Network that is continuing to connect folks across the region to share solutions, resources, and strategies for advancing economic justice and participatory democracy across the South and Appalachia. Of special note: we want to acknowledge that this work moves in E Williams' legacy and dream of training cooperative economists through the Mapping Our Futures Training of Trainers.

In May, we celebrated the birthday of former Highlander Education Director, Septima Clark, with an online event through the newly completed Septima Clark Learning Center. Ms. Clark's family members were able to join us in a virtual gathering to share their own stories and memories of her life and what her time at Highlander meant for her family. Staff are busy transitioning the library and archival material to the new building, and we look forward to once again celebrating (in person!) the Learning Center after the pandemic has subsided.

The police murders of countless more Black siblings in 2020 and the intersecting crisis of the pandemic's impact on Black, Brown, and Indigenous communities prompted Highlander to move quickly to support and accompany our partners with the Movement 4 Black Lives, the Rising Majority, and what became the Frontline. SEEDS OF FIRE YOUTH ORGANIZING PROGRAM

Our Seeds of Fire youth organizing program responded to the year's events by first playing a leadership role in the organization. Guided by insights and communication from our young people and their families, Highlander began moving to pandemic era protocols sooner than most. As the year progressed, the program began providing grief circles online for Black and Brown youth to gather in ritual to elevate those whose lives had been lost and to support each other in their healing processes. Supported by Education Team members Natalie Casal Alcaíno, Cal Lane, and Rosemary Paz, the Seeds of Fire youth also launched a 6-week intensive for youth organizers, the Semilla's Summer Learning Institute, in lieu of our usual in-person Seeds of Fire camp. The series was planned by the youth Advisory Committee with youth-led workshops on popular education, healing justice, direct action, and more.

THE SCHOOL 2 PRISON PIPELINE

S2PP: Criminalizing Youth

The school-to-prison pipeline is a process through which students are pushed out of schools and into prisons. In other words, it is a process of criminalizing youth that is carried out by disciplinary policies and practices within schools that put students into contact with law enforcement. Once they are put into contact with law enforcement for disciplinary reasons, many are then pushed out of the educational environment and into the juvenile and criminal justice systems.

The key policies and practices that created and now maintain the school-to-prison pipeline include zero tolerance policies that mandate harsh punishments for both minor and major infractions, exclusion of students from schools through punitive suspensions and expulsions, and the presence of police on campus as School Resource Officers (SROs).

The school-to-prison pipeline is supported by budgetary decisions made by the U.S. government. From 1987-2007, funding for incarceration more than doubled while funding for higher education was raised by just 21 percent, according to PBS. In addition, evidence shows that the school-to-prison pipeline primarily captures and affects Black students, which mirrors the over-representation of this group in America's prisons and jails.

Transformative Justice Workshop

TRANSFORMATIVE JUSTICE: HEALING-FOCUSED AND PEOPLE-CENTERED

Transformative Justice is a political framework and approach for responding to violence, harm and abuse. It seeks to respond to violence without creating more violence and/or engaging in harm reduction to lessen the violence. Transformative justice:

- Does not rely on the state (e.g. police, prisons, the criminal legal system I.C.E., foster care system)
- Does not reinforce or perpetuate violence such as oppressive norms or vigilantism
- Actively cultivates the things we know prevent violence such as healing, accountability, resilience, and safety for all involved

HEALING JUSTICE WORKSHOP

What do you already know about healing justice?

JOURNAL
What do I need to release that is holding me back from being my greatest self?

HEALING JUSTICE
In simple terms, means taking seriously, and combatting, the effect of trauma, oppression and violence in our bodies, hearts and minds.

A Healing Justice framework lifts up resilience and survival practices that center the collective safety and emotional, physical, spiritual, environmental, and mental wellbeing of communities.

RELEASING RITUAL: PRACTICING HEALING JUSTICE
A ritual is a process where an intention is set and elements are used to meet that intention. As Sobonfu Somé said, "what food is to our body, ritual is to our soul. A ritual keeps us connected to our spirit, our soul and our purpose."

Water is a great medium to use in our lives - from drinking it, to holding memories, water has many healing properties. It's easy to pick up energy from people - so clearing oneself is important. By releasing water into the earth/plant after a release ritual we clear ourselves. This ritual is best practiced in community, but can be done alone.

Make sure that after this ritual, you take a bath, change your clothes and drink lots of water!

Steps:

- Take a few seconds to gather water, a container (anything but plastic), a journal and something to write with.
- You want to be somewhere you can access outside/earth, and maybe even near an altar if you have one.
- Take some time to journal the question above, about releasing.
- After you've journaled, take what you wrote and turn it into affirmative sentences, for example, instead of saying "one day I hope to release this," say "today I will be releasing..."
 - Say it out loud! There is immense power in speaking into the world what we want, and being heard by others
- Once you say it, visualize what you are letting go of being released from your body and into the water container you have
 - Ask yourself: what quality is it? Does it have a texture? A smell or color? Where from your body is it coming from?
- Once you are done, take the water and go outside, finding a spot to pour the water onto the earth. Make sure to give gratitude to the land for receiving what you have to give, as water holds, the earth will carry and transmit it for us.
- When you come back, rub your hands together until you feel heat between them, then use the heat to brush your body - this will help the energy be released.

Immense gratitude and credit to Ekua Adisa, for passing the wisdom we can practice today

LANGUAGE JUSTICE
A challenge of colonization & dominant culture

"When we learned the language our grandmothers spoke it was to weave fabric from past to future" - Ava Chia

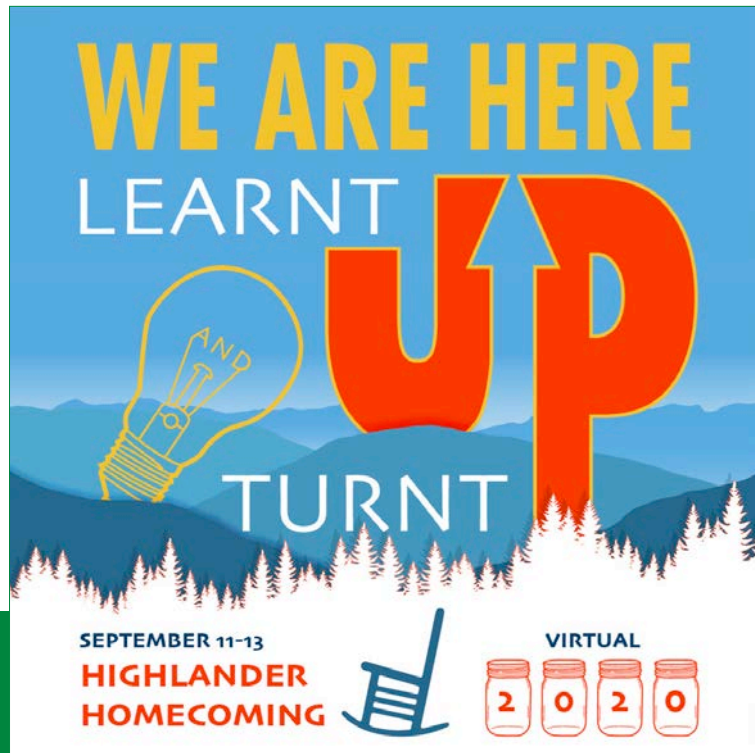

Language Justice is the practice of making communication accessible, and using language as a tool of empowerment towards collective learning and strategy. It means people from different places, different cultures, and different dialects can come together and understand each other, without forcing themselves to speak a language that is not native to them.

We know language is important because it is rooted in identity, culture, practice and resistance. Language Justice seeks to recognize and uplift:

- Stolen Languages
- Languages Forgotten or at the brink of extinction
- Dominant, colonizer language
- Non-dominant language

We know Language Justice can begin with interpretation and translation, and end with decolonization of it.

88TH ANNUAL HOMECOMING ONLINE

In September, we transformed our 88th annual Homecoming into a fully virtual experience, with a weekend of workshops, cultural events, and dialogue online with our theme for the year: “We Are Here: Learnt Up and Turnt Up.” We partnered with dozens of movement organizations to provide sessions on housing justice, essential workers organizing in a pandemic, ASL for movement, and more. The weekend included children’s programming, film discussions, book talks, and space for culture and spirit. We had a virtual CountryAss Pride dance party Saturday night in partnership with Black in Space and our Cultural Cohort members. It was an amazing weekend and we really felt the love even though we couldn’t be together in person.

Leading up to Election Day, we partnered with other organizations in the Southern Movement Assembly, Spirit House (NC), and Alternate ROOTS to provide mini-grants and technical support for Poll Parties, helping people celebrate voting rights and bringing joy to poll sites with music and art to overcome threats and fear. Overall, we supported more than 50 actions, engaged over 135 volunteers, and interacted with more than 7,500 voters.

WHERE WE'RE HEADED

We just launched our Seeds of Fire Methodology Fellowship and our TRANSformative Cohort in 2021, programs that will provide funding, network, and training support for youth organizers to lead change efforts in their communities.

We are preparing to release more educational interventions on our Methodologies through one-pagers and 101 workshops unpacking popular education, participatory action research, intergenerational organizing, language justice, land justice, and cultural organizing.

We will be releasing the “Beyond Transition: Appalachia’s Pathway to Justice and Transformation” report later in 2021 with workshops to convene folks in engaging with the strategies and ideas we collected and sharing and building on their own. We will also be releasing the “Recipe for Culture Cookbook” soon to share cultural organizing interventions, strategies, and recipes from the South and Appalachia.

We continue to add capacity to the Movement for Black Lives, Southern Movement Assembly, the US Solidarity Economy Network, the Frontline, and other movement formations to continue to build power for transformative justice in our region and beyond. New staff have joined the team to help us remember our stories and tell them creatively, and capital infrastructure projects are making steady progress.

After two years full of so many challenges, we are proud of all that we have been able to move, of how we have all shown up to demand and advance justice and liberation, and for all the support and participation that has held us and helped build this important work for a liberated world.

Most of all, we are grateful that you are our people.

BEQUESTS

The Estate of Joshua Halpern

The Estate of Dorothy Kincaid

LEAVE A GIFT TO HIGHLANDER THAT CARRIES ON YOUR HOPES AND DREAMS...

A planned gift is the legacy you leave behind. It reflects thoughtful and intentional resource management and can help you achieve your charitable goals. It can also reduce your personal taxes or return tax-advantaged income to you.

While planned giving is not necessarily complicated, planned gifts do benefit from directed effort to see that your charitable wishes are carried out.

Highlander is ready and able to help you in this process. We can discuss options, make suggestions, give you information, or work with your advisors to make a planned gift possible.

To learn more, contact Highlander's Development Team at barbara@highlandercenter.org.

"For the sisters and brothers of Highlander—I am very grateful for you and for your important work in carrying on the great traditions of your predecessors and the great hopes of your children.

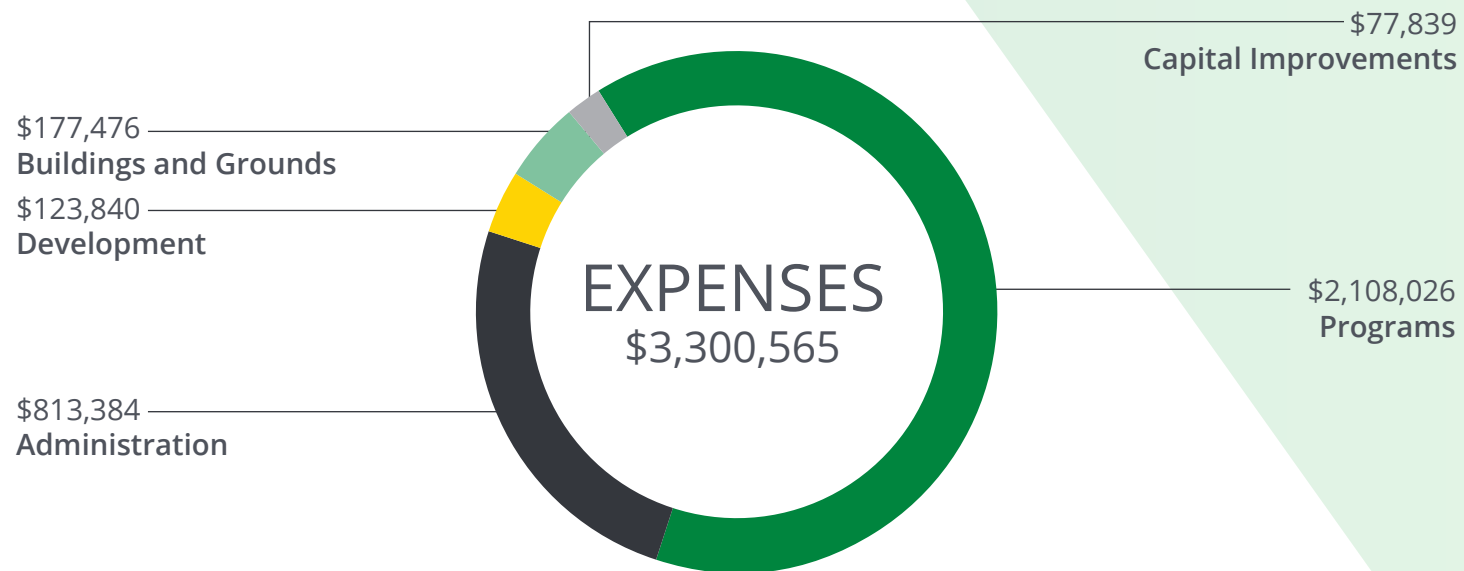

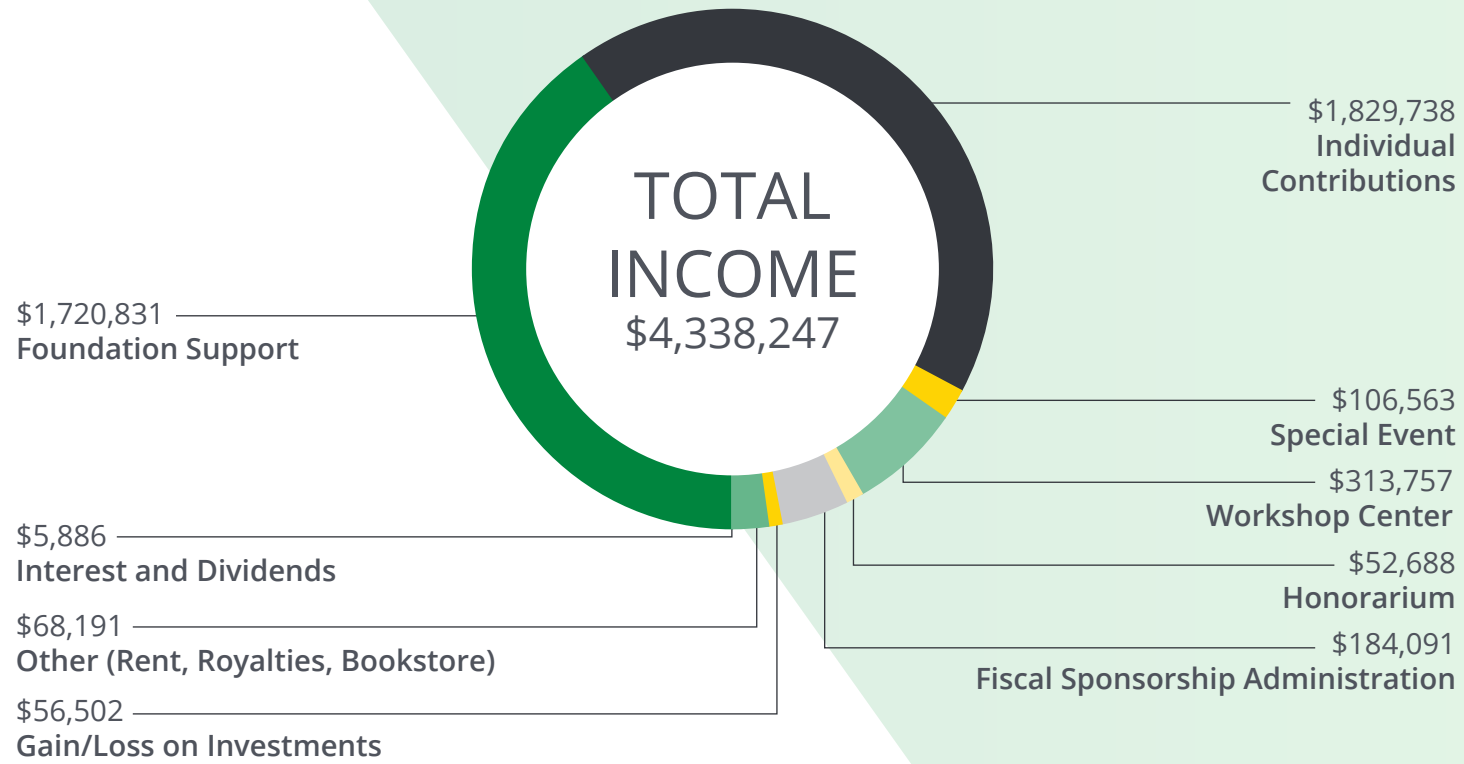

Go right on. Continue strong. A new America still needs to be born. Let us be the midwives."

Dr. Vincent G. Harding
