R.M.C., El Monte

These programs (San Francisco Beat, Sheriff of Cochise, Harbor Command, Frontier Doctor, Highway Patrol) are showing our young people crime does not pay. These men are doing a good job, as well as others in the same category.

There are many fine TV shows for the young, as well as adults; many to select from.

S.W.L., Santa Ana

I like Elvis. He has something other performers don't have. Some say kids like him because he wiggles. Then how come they buy his records—he can't wiggle on a record?

... only half alike

Mrs. D.R., El Monte

Is Marvin Miller any relation to Oscar Levant? They bear a striking resemblance.

No, Marv isn't nervous a bit.

E.E.H., La Habra

We would enjoy our TV programs if only we could hear the actresses, but that blaring noise they call music drowns all voices and ruins the program.

D.D., San Diego

I am a Polka Parade fan. I dislike Lawrence Welk very much but in all fairness to Welk, who is copying who? From where I stand, it looks as though R.D. of San Clemente might have got it in reverse.

Miss M.S., Whittier

Gisele MacKenzie was a really great girl. She had so much personality and talent and I just can't see any logical explanation for taking her off our sets.

I wish someone would wise up and get her a sponsor and get her back on TV. We need a good entertainer like Miss MacKenzie on TV, and I know I'm not the only one who feels this way about it.

C.V.H., Riverside

... it seems to me if anything, Tombstone Territory is the dull program. It's too much like the other westerns. The only thing I like about that show is the song they sing at the end.

ROBERT HORTON

... flashing that grin

J.C.G., Riverside

I saw Wagon Train tonight on TV and thought Robert Horton was the greatest. He did a wonderful job and am requesting that you print a picture of him and his flashy grin.

F.S., Chula Vista

Thanks Ed for the wonderful Moiseyev Dancers. It makes up for the past 25 poor shows. Didn't it seem good to see girls dance that wore dresses. Our girls would wear a breach cloth. We have no such talent in our country—are we going to let Russia beat us in everything. Makes Fred Astaire look like nothing.

Mrs. B.L.C., Hawthorne

Why such a howl about Matinee Theatre going off the air when all they give is repeats? You would think they would like to leave a good taste in your mouth, but the last few weeks all they gave us was repeats and not very good ones at that.

... favorite male singer

C.S., Los Angeles

I was so glad to read someone come to the defense of the Eddie Fisher Show; it was always my favorite. I think Eddie Fisher has the most beautiful voice of any male singer on television.

I read where Eddie never had a hit record. Well, it could be because you can't find any of his records in the stores. I've looked and looked for them and never find any, so how can they become hits if we can't buy them?

J.B., Yucaipa

We always liked to watch Alfred Hitchcock Presents until he turned it into a booze party. Surely the young folk see enough of liquor ads without having so much on TV. We feel it's a shame to spoil a good program with it.

Mrs. M.H., Pomona

I agree with Mrs. R.H.B. Am forced, if I want to watch TV at all, to watch "adult Westerns"—my husband has the control. There are certainly good and bad—which brings us to L.Z.

How does the rating compare between Gunsmoke and Tombstone Territory? They've been known to lie, but in this case . . . ?

I'd call Jim Arness a man, but wouldn't have the nerve to call Pat Conway an actor! He's "pretty" but puerile (just one person's opinion). If and when Tombstone Territory is good, I give him no credit.

More than anyone else Bill Welsh knows

How KTTV Covers Live News Events

By Ted Hilgenstuhler

BILL WELSH had just landed his first job with a small radio station in his home town of Greeley, Colorado. On a purely social call, he decided to stop by one day at the local police station to visit the desk sergeant—an old college buddy of Bill's.

Bill found his friend stretched on the floor. He was dead. Minutes before Welsh entered the station, his friend took a criminal into custody. Unknown to anyone, the criminal packed a revolver, shot the sergeant, and made a quick getaway.

Young Bill Welsh was the first to discover the body of his college friend. In the years that followed, covering wrecks, floods, murders and other disasters, newsman Bill Welsh came across many dead bodies.

"But nothing ever shocked me as much as that first experience," the KTTV special events director declares. "They eventually caught the killer. Trapped him in a field. Before they could get their hands on him, he shot himself."

First Scoop

Reluctantly, Welsh reported the tragedy and received state-wide recognition. That was the beginning of his long career in tracking down disasters.

Today, as the head of KTTV special events department, Welsh is one of the busiest—if not the busiest—on-the-spot TV reporters in our town.

"We average about one remote special event telecast a week," Bill declares. "We definitely lose money but the station figures it well worth the effort. People in Southern California have become accustomed to tuning in to Channel 11 the minute anything unusual happens."

To provide Southern Californians with this top coverage, KTTV has five completely equipped mobile units. One unit is always ready-to-go at a minute's notice. And each unit has its own power plant, tents, stoves, sleeping equipment and enough food to last for two days in the field.

Since its first telecast of the Rose Parade on January 1, 1949—KTTV has done more than 4,000 remote telecasts, more than any other in the nation.

"As many remotes as we do," Bill explains, "even more surprising are the number we don't do. During a single week I'll have between 25 and 50 news events, which might be covered. I have to analyze the situation and decide on a minute's notice sometimes, whether or not I should call the trucks out. We've done as many as seven remotes in a single day—and one time we even had three major news events to cover in one week (the San Diego train wreck; a flood; and a Long Beach fire at the Ford plant)."

WHETHER IT BE FIRE OR FLOOD, beauty contest or catastrophe, Bill Welsh (center) and KTTV's camera crew are always on hand to bring the dramatic news of Southern California into our living rooms.

Tips From Public

Although Bill keeps in close touch with all news sources (he even has a special car-telephone, the only one of its kind), many tips come from private citizens. After Bill gives the "go-ahead," the crews are given a quick briefing, and in a matter of minutes they are on their way. A special large map and a card-index system indicates hundreds of locations which the crews are familiar with. Immediately, they know whether they need one, two, or even three relay stations.

"My job gets hectic and tiring at times," Bill continues. "And it seems that the big news events happen in bunches so I go for several days with hardly any sleep. I also have quite a few regular shows on KTTV—and I have yet to have a Sunday off.

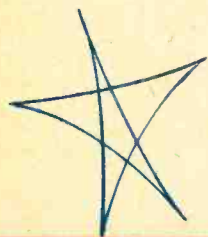

"But I wouldn't trade my job on TV with anyone."

As a reporter, Bill is strictly the objective type and he doesn't get nearly as frantic as some other hammy newscasters. Welsh believes in letting the human drama seen on the scene speak for itself, emotionally. He merely gives the facts, and lets the public make up its own mind.

The bespectacled KTTV announcer seldom gets ruffled at the sight of disaster and tragedy.

After that first encounter with death as a young newsman in Greeley, Colorado—Bill Welsh knows that in his work the best you can expect is the very worst and the most unexpected.

TV actress Judi Meredith is very pretty and exceptionally talented but she's still

The Star

NO ONE RECOGNIZES

THE ONE problem which TV stars complain about is the fact everyone recognizes them wherever they go. Stars naturally like fame and recognition. That's partly why they are in show business.

But occasionally they also like some privacy. They like to become just another face in the crowd.

Now actress Judi Meredith is somewhat of a star already. On TV, she's performed on Conflict, Telephone Time, Panic, Shirley Temple's Storybook, Conflict and the Burns and Allen show 28 times. In fact, it was George Burns who discovered Judi at the Pasadena Playhouse starring in Picnic. The part of Ronnie Burns' girl, "Bonnie Sue," was created especially for her. Movie-wise, the short (5' 2") actress with the chestnut hair and the gay green eyes has starred in three pictures: Summer Love, Money, Women and Guns, and The Wild Heritage.

The day we interviewed Judi was only shortly after she was featured with Tommy Sands on Studio One in The Left-Handed Welcome. Because we knew we were soon to meet this girl, we studied her camera movements closely, especially her face.

"Are you really Judi Meredith," we asked, quite honestly after we first met.

"Yes, I'm afraid I am," she laughed. "Everyone seems to have that problem with me. I'll see people in person, and then the second time we meet, they don't know me. I don't do it purposely," she continued. "I wear very little make-up. I don't change the color of my hair. I really just try to look like me wherever I go. I guess my face just changes," she says slightly puzzled, but certainly not disturbed about it.

Judi is not the kind of a girl who gets disturbed or discouraged very easily about anything.

Once she broke her back falling from a window. Then she had her left knee cap removed after a skiing accident. These two injuries ended her two-year skating career with the famous Ice Follies.

Her parents gave Judi six weeks "to prove herself" as an actress at the Pasadena Playhouse or else "return home to Portland."

After six weeks, including her Picnic performance, no one did discover Judi, so she returned to Portland, resolved to become a chemical engineer or maybe a housewife.

Then, Burns and Allen called requesting her to appear in their series. That started Judi's new career as a Hollywood actress. Many producers and directors believe Judi has a tremendous potential for even greater stardom than she has already experienced.

Before that happens, however, she may have to get one face that everyone will remember.

UNTIL OSCAR LEVANT DESCENDED ONTO television with his bark and bite, I'd never given much thought to Mrs. Levant except I'd heard that she and her sisters had been on the stage and in pictures and that while June was still very young she had married Oscar and immediately relinquished her career. Then quite unexpectedly there was this poised, attractive woman occupying the jump-seat on Levant's KCOP show, managing to hold her own quite admirably both in and out of the studio, an accomplishment which must have evoked considerable admiration especially from members of her own sex.

APPARENTLY MRS. LEVANT'S qualifications were appreciated by the opposite gender, too. It was KCOP's Al Flanagan who'd invited Oscar's wife to dive in and splash around on Oscar's show while Levant was still on KCOP. Shortly after Oscar picked up his quips and barbs to move to Channel 9, Flanagan paired Oscar's wife as movie co-host with Lloyd Thaxton in the late afternoon. Then, this past week, June was assigned her own Monday-Friday flicker and chatter program on Channel 13.

WHEN I INQUIRED ABOUT HER reaction to this latest development, June Levant answered, "I think having my own show is good. I feel like much more of a person with my own program. More independent. I have some interests of my own in which to be absorbed. Maritally it's much better for Oscar and me to have separate shows." She explained that it had been a strain when both had concentrated on the one television program. With Oscar using his home as an office and working there all day, then the two of them going together to the studio and becoming involved in the same project it had been simply a case of being together too much.

JUNE'S NEW TV CAREER

has glided along so rapidly that even she is surprised. She thinks Oscar is pleased. He caught her first show with Thaxton, afterward praised her conversational form (a compliment anyone should regard highly coming from one as valuable and erudite as Levant) and added approvingly, "You sat up straight." Mrs. Levant, who for years has thrown herself into the demanding role of running the Levant household and raising three daughters to the teen-age period, has often wondered what she'd do when her girls were grown. "I don't like clubs. I don't like golf, luncheons or bridge groups." When the chance came to do TV, she put the proposition to a family vote. Majority favored. Marcia, the youngest daughter and holdout, grudgingly admits mother is performing acceptably.

JUNE LEVANT ALSO USED to wonder why women whose husbands obviously could support them generously wanted to pursue careers. Now she understands. "It's a means of expression," she states.

POETRY WITH JAZZ

AVANT GARDE poet, Kenneth Patchen, impressive figure in the controversial art form "Poetry and Jazz," last week made his second appearance locally on KABC-TV's Stars of Jazz. Acclaimed by many literary critics as a genius, Patchen read from 35 of his poems underscored by Allyn Ferguson and The Chamber Jazz Sextet. Producers of stars of Jazz presented program objectively, remembering concept of readings to music started with Homer and troubadours. Tried again at other periods, present movement is first to match modern poetry with modern music.

Looks as if they're trying to figure out one of Patchen's poems! It has been said of him, "No one knows what Patchen is talking about — except Patchen and God."

Candid Camera glimpses Ed as he stages TV show here

VERY infrequently do Southern Californians have opportunity to glimpse sphinx-faced Ed Sullivan in throes of staging his Sabbath show. The confirmed New Yorker's visits to the Southland are usually for the specific purpose of corraling talent for a Manhattan origination. But recently Sullivan did invade CBS's Television City here for a brace of live programs at which a candid camera was on duty during rehearsal. The accompanying pictures give a small idea of backstage activity during the impresario's preparations for his coast-to-coast ainer.

WHILE ASSISTANT PEERS OUT into darkened CBS-TV studio, Ed Sullivan confers with technical aides before telecasting his Sunday show from Hollywood's Television City. Facilities here are finest.

DUG BY JACK HOLLAND

DOTTO got one of the most abrupt cancellations on record when Top Dollar suddenly replaced it on CBS-TV. This has created quite a tempest — and rightfully so. Networks owe their viewers more consideration than this. To drop a popular show with no advance word, no explanation is downright stupidity and can only succeed in alienating viewers. Some have been so irate as to threaten to stay clear of CBS. While this undoubtedly won't happen for long — if it does at all — it does point up how viewers react to such treatment. The fault is not here on the coast — none of the CBS people here knew what was going on. The blame lies with some of the big brains (?) in the East who must have taken extensive courses in How to Alienate Viewers and Lose Audiences. Anyway, Dotto is off. Top Dollar is on. And nobody knows what gives.

There is a school of thought that the arty unfinished dramas seen so often in live TV, especially in New York emanated shows, has had much to do with the dismal demise of a good hunk of TV drama. In short, the plays got so cockeyed arty no one knew what was going on — and soon cared less. Somewhere along the line, dramatists and producers forget the one cardinal rule in show business — the function is to entertain. Entertainment is something that has been sadly neglected on TV recently and it had better get a rebirth if the medium is to get back its rosy-cheek hue. The new crop of shows seem singularly devoid of the downbeat, so-called realistic picturization of the sordid seams of life. Even the unfinished ending bits apparently have ended. So maybe someone back in the midst of New York's hallowed walls has heard the message. Maybe now TV drama will again re-gain its stature and its public by providing entertainment — and stories that come to an end somewhere.

Great news that Mary Martin is to do two special shows — both in one day — for NBC in the fall. She will do a matinee for the young audience and then a performance for adults in the evening. Her show will be based primarily on her "Music with Mary Martin" stage production which she is taking on tour beginning next month. What a pleasure it will be to see her back again. But do you want to bet right now that the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences will rule that this two-in-one-day show will not be considered for the Emmy? Want to bet the great minds of the organization will rule that "her presentation was not done strictly for TV?" That was what knocked her Annie Get Your Gun out of consideration last year.

In answer to a study of commercials on shows presenting movies, Austin Heywood, KNXT's fine publicity and promotion head, sent me the following:

"First, let me say that never in the history of KNXT have we exceeded the commercial time quota set up by the NAB code. As a matter of fact . . . we utilize only 50 to 65 percent of the commercial time permitted under the code. This is especially true of our quality motion picture presentations, such as Fabulous 52 and Big Hit Movies. For example, on Fabulous 52 we consider the program sold out when commercial time approximates 50 to 55 percent of the code-allotted commercial time . . . In a two hour movie we are allowed 24 minutes of commercial time under the code. Our average is around 12½ minutes for the two hours. In Big Hit Movies, which run about 90 minutes . . . we are allowed 18 minutes under the code but average out approximately 11 minutes or 51 percent of the time permitted.

BITS AND PIECES: Some of you may remember that picture, purportedly of me, that appeared in the "Eye and Ear" section last week. I hasten to report that it really was a picture of a degenerate up for sentencing on "Night Court." My picture somehow got on the cover and everyone thought it was Clint Walker.

I received a card from an indignant citizen who is incensed at the commercials on TV. She names programs and stations and signs herself "Mrs. Anon." I admire your courage, Mrs. Anon, for speaking out like that.

"Bitter Rice." (5) Aug. 31, 7:30. 1950. After the triumphs of the early post war Italian pictures, our friends from the Boot began to turn out movies in what they thought was the American idiom, and "Bitter Rice" is one of the first results, a gangster thing which reaches its climax in the rice fields where good girl worker falls for a bad guy worker while working. I'm sure you'll remember that shot of Silvano Mangano standing in a rice paddy in a tight jersey and a pair of short shorts. At least, I'll never forget it. She's a voluptuous girl and can even act a little, as she proved in a later picture, "Gold of Naples." "Bitter Rice" is an uneven mixture of Italian earthiness and American commercialism and while it never makes much sense, it is diverting while Miss Mangano is harvesting rice.

I Wish I Hadn't Done That

By Jack Holland

RICHARD BOONE, who is the prime essayer of action-packed derring-do and charm on CBS-TV's Have Gun, Will Travel had just returned from playing a rodeo. It was his first experience at such a production and it had made quite an impression on him.

"I assure you, this is one thing I'm glad I did," smiled the genial, friendly Dick. "What a deal it was!"

Dick lit a cigarette, leaned on the table, became pensive suddenly and then said, "Things I wish I hadn't done is that it? Well, that could cover a lot of territory." He paused, trying to remember some of the more choice incidents, and then with a grin he said, "Well, there was the time when I was 10. My Dad was a corporation lawyer with some important clients. One night, the phone rang and I answered it. Impudently, I said, 'Go ahead, it's your nickel.' The party on the other end happened to be John Brown of Socony Vacuum. My Dad saw no humor in this and let me know about it."

Career-wise, Dick has been lucky ever since he came to Hollywood from the Broadway stage, got important parts at 20th Century-Fox, and then went on TV to do Medic and Have Gun, Will Travel. He seems to have been in the right places at the right times. For a while, though, he regretted the 20th Century-Fox deal. He felt he wasn't doing the right kinds of roles. But now he regards it as the best thing he ever did because of the experience it gave him.

Not that he hasn't done things in his career he wishes he hadn't.

Roles That Flopped

"I wanted so much to do the part of Abraham Lincoln, so I did it on GE Theater—and I got terrible notices," Dick said. "People were looking for the Lincoln on the five dollar bill but I was doing Lincoln, as is described in Irving Stone's book, at a time when the man was actually a manic-depressive. My interpretation just wasn't a general success."

"I also worked hard to get a job in Macbeth on Broadway. I got fired fast

ARMED WITH DYNAMITE, Paladin, also known as Richard Boone, prepares to face a lynch mob bent on hanging one of his clients.

JOHN CARRADINE, right, scorns Dick Boone for killing a bandit on mission grounds. The CBS-KNXT Have Gun, Will Travel show has established itself as one of the most popular offerings on TV.

— for giving a lousy performance. But I learned a lesson from this — never to try too hard for something I'm not prepared for. I got another play after that and was fired too. From that one, I learned to recognize a dismissal notice," Dick added with a grin. "I believe now that all young actors, such as I was then, learn by bitter experiences what they can and can't do — and what parts they should not attempt until they are farther along in their careers. For instance. I still want to do Macbeth today."

But probably the experience Dick regrets the most is the time when he lost his temper and got into a fight. He gave the other kid a severe beating. Only when it was over did he realize the danger of that temper and how it had to be controlled. Since then he can still get mad but he never lets anger get out of hand.

"Some people think I regretted doing Medic, but I didn't," he went on. "It was just that at the end of 60 diseases I got tired of it."

"Have Gun, Will Travel is probably my most completely happy experience. When I was given the first script I read the first five pages and called my agent immediately and told him I'd do it. It was the fastest — and best — decision I ever made."

"Recently, Johnny Western, Sam Rolfe, and I wrote a song called 'Ballad of Paladin.' I tried it out first at the rodeo — as the entrance to my act. I think it has promise. I just hope that doesn't turn out to be something I wish I hadn't done," he laughed.

Pick of the Pix

"Double Dynamite." (9) Beginning Sept. 1, 9:00. 1951. When I first saw this movie, I said, "The producers thought that all they had to do when things bogged down between Jane Russell and Frank Sinatra was to throw in Groucho Marx with a couple of bad jokes. It doesn't work unless the comic's material is good." Or something like that and it still goes. The plot is about a timid bank teller, Sinatra, and a shortage at the bank and a romance. A painful picture.

"The Ghost and Mrs. Muir." (2) Aug. 30, 10:00. I have been apprised that beginning with an October 11 colorcast of "The African Queen," the Fabulous 52 will once again be first run. In the meantime, here is a repeat of a fairly good comedy about a widow, Gene Tierney, and the ghost of a crusty old sea captain, Rex Harrison.

"Santa Fe Passage." (4) Aug. 30, 11:15. 1955. A recent western in which Indian hating scout John Payne hooks on with a weapons train, headed by Rod Cameron and Faith Domergue, which is bringing arms to the Mexicans, a mission fraught with the usual. Payne falls for Miss Domergue, an actress of plaster mobility, and then is faced with the appalling (to him) realization that she is half-Indian. It doesn't say which half, but I'm sure John resolves his differences... women were scarce in the old west.

"Crowded Paradise." (2) Sept. 1, 10:30. 1956. This attempt to look at the New York Puerto Rican problem is laudable in intent, but something else again in execution. Mario Alcalde arrives in the big city with ideas of conquering it and instead is caught up in a soul destroying round of job hunting. He also is a bit puzzled by our ways when a sex hungry building superintendent (how about that for an occupation?) played by Hume Cronyn, tries to break up the boy's marriage with a bomb. No wonder the Puerto Ricans are having a hard time adjusting.

"Judy Garland Week on KTTV." (Check our logs for information) Miss Garland was a great performer and is a great talent and these films will give you a nostalgic look at some of her early efforts. She appeared recently at the Cocoanut Grove and from all reports was a smash, with none of the attendant publicity of the last few years. Encouraging.

"Crowded Paradise." (2) Sept. 1, 10:30. 1956. Going down?

"Insofar as triple commercial spotting, a question constantly raised by viewers and the press, our policy is never to triple spot. However, we do use two 1-minute commercials, punctuated by a station identification break of 8 to 10 seconds at station break time within a program. To be very blunt about it, this practice of airing two 1-minute commercials and a station ID is the practice followed by Channel 2 throughout its broadcasting day, as long as this combination is used within a program only. . . . Of extreme importance to us, and I believe to you and our viewers is the fact that we do not accept commercials of longer than one minute duration. As you know, this is not the case with the majority of the other stations. Commercials quite often run 2, 3 and 4 minutes. Channel 2 personnel are of the opinion that our viewers appreciate the short commercials and the fact that we do double spot so as to eliminate distracting interruptions of motion pictures and other programs."

SKIPPER FRANK'S SCAM-O-GRAM

Have you and your gang hit the Summer doldrums? This is the tag end of the Season when everything tends to get a little bit dull. Vacation is almost over and it is now time to start looking forward to the new friends and activities of School sessions.

However, there is one expression that will cause your gang's eyes to light up and excite their interest. The words are "fortune telling", just mention them and watch the whole crowd stir with interest. This basic emotion will afford you the platform for a gag that will provide lots of laughs for the whole circle of your acquaintances.

It is called the "Dime Fortune Teller". For this stunt you will need a dime and a damp cloth and one person to act as usher and assistant.

With the damp cloth wet the forehead of a person whose fortune is to be told and press the dime on his forehead with a firm pressure. Then ask him a question such as, "How many girl (or boy) friends do you have?" or "how many times were you late for school last year?"... "how many times have you flunked Social Study tests?" or any other question that will fit the person or situation. You explain that the cosmic brain waves from his brain will keep the dime on his forehead until he has truthfully answered the question. As many times as he shakes his head to remove the dime, indicate the answer to the question asked. Thus if he shakes three times to shake the dime loose, he was late for school three times and so forth... Each time the person's forehead is dampened and the dime is pressed on, the query is asked and the victim shakes his head until the dime drops. The last time the dime is pressed against the forehead but not left there. The laughs come as he is asked the questions and tries in vain to shake off the dime that is not there.

This works especially well where one group is let in on the trick and the others are kept in the dark. Bring your victims in one at a time and then let him stay to watch the next person.

The Brothers.

Alt. Sundays, 7:30 p.m.

KNXT, Ch. 2

Perhaps the surest way to judge the success of a television series is the simple question as to whether it runs . . . or doesn't run. Not that such a judgement has anything to do with merit or quality, but the simple economic fact as to whether an advertiser buys it and keeps it on the air.

Why is it then that mediocre or downright bad programs will prevail, while others of superior merit die a miserable death before they even get off the ground? The perils of ratings are well known. But there are probably even more complex factors. The time slot in which a new series is pitted against a proven veteran can spell disaster for a new show.

Too, there is such a thing as the timing with regard to public taste or acceptance of an idea. Excellent ideas have perished because they were ahead of their time; for through some strange human chemistry the public is simply not ready for them. And other ideas have died because they chanced to follow in a train of similar, though inferior, ideas.

And I have a hunch that many an idea or series is axed simply because of the tastes of one individual . . . be he advertiser, ad agency executive, network official, or whatnot, but somehow the series is quietly done away with . . . and sometimes not so quietly when a storm of letters registers protest.

Which one of these fates may have overtaken The Brothers, now enjoying a summer re-run, I know not. I am grateful at least to see the episodes of this series again, and hope that it might mean some revived interest leading to a more permanent tenure.

The Brothers stars two of the funniest comics in the business, Gale Gordon and Bob Sweeney, a duo always worth watching. Though Sweeney is perhaps not as well known as Gordon, Sweeney's comedy has a warmth and delightful pixie charm which has never been exploited to the extent it should be.

In again looking at episodes of this series, I found that time had not dimmed their appeal. For those who missed The Brothers on their first round, or who have not caught up with them this summer, this is to suggest a look at one of the most delightful comedy series now on the air.

women. She has an aversion to name-dropping and consequently is not too keen about reporting Hollywood social activities but feels that her viewers like such comments, so she'll accommodate. She finds that presiding over her own show is much more exacting than her previous TV chores. (She has lost 10 pounds since taking up TV.)

JUNE RECALLS THAT AS A BRIDE, Oscar took her to live in New York where she was drawn into his very sophisticated circle and "felt so young." Night after night she would silently sit listening to brilliant conversation ("I've done a lot of listening in my life"). Afterward Oscar would invariably ask her why she'd not opened her mouth. "They can't get me to stop talking on TV," she laughs now.

MRS. LEVANT'S STRONGEST QUALITY, by her own admission, is stick-to-itiveness. Awhile back when her husband was ill, she tackled the job of family cook and from a rank novice became quite accomplished at whipping up a tasty, nourishing dinner. (When her TV activities curtailed June's culinary feats, the Levants had to hire a regular cook.) This same ability to surmount and stick are evidenced in other departments of Mrs. Levant's life, as any headline reader will grant. If she treats her TV career as she has other phases of her life, she may be around on our screens longer than the husband, whom she patently admires.

Rumpus Room Success

One reason the Original Rumpus Room has caught on is its appeal to teen-agers who use it for TV viewing and hi-fi listening. According to Robert Guess and Donald Peacher of Nu-Way Construction Company, their rumpus room has kept children at home with the family yet given them a place where they may enjoy privacy.

As a result of Original Rumpus Room's success, the company has launched itself as recreational specialists and is now constructing swimming pools, which added to the rumpus rooms, afford complete family enjoyment. Models of this new recreational set-up may be seen at 849 Washington Blvd., Montebello, where TV-Radio Life readers are invited to inspect a Lazy L pool, cabana and rumpus room, 9 to 6 daily.

PUPPET PEOPLE ON TV

One of the most popular features of Liberace's night club show, now appearing in Los Angeles, is puppeteer Sid Krofft's presentation of his marionettes.

Inspired by the demand for this type of entertainment the very personable Sid is planning the first regular TV show featuring marionettes exclusively. Called "Little People," the cast will be made up of the more than 900 puppets which young Sid inherited from his father, founder of the famed Krofft Theater in Athens, Greece.

Following three months of preliminary work, 26 half-hours have been mapped out and production will start soon. Action, comedy and satire will be featured, with special appeal to the adult audience. Fashionwise women will be interested in miniature gowns by Pierre Balmain of Paris.

The Voices of the DODGERS

living doing all the things they both love to do: golf, swimming, and even trying the dangerous but exciting sport of water skiing.

Another note on Vin: he has long held a reputation as being one of the finest baseball announcers, and also holds the unofficial title of being the world's best dressed sports announcer. Vin continues to hold this title and has already found the swank Hollywood and Beverly Hills men's shops and has altered his wardrobe to dress the part of the true Californian he now claims he is.

Bronx Boy

Vin was born in the Bronx on the 29th of November in 1927, the son of Bridget and Allen Reeve. His parents still reside in the East, in Bogota, New Jersey, along with Vin's sister Margaret Ann and two other members of his household — a dog, Blackie, and a canary, Pete. On the club's eastern junkets Vinny always manages to get back to visit his family.

Fordham was the choice of educational institutions for Vinny. He went to Fordham Prep and then matriculated at Fordham University, majoring in Radio and Commercial Arts. He even tried his hand playing a little baseball, and claims that he was a pretty fair center fielder, but hastens to say modestly — "I wasn't in the Duke Snider class though."

His first radio job came at WTOP, a 50,000 watt outlet in Washington, D.C., as a staff announcer.

He now has been with the Dodgers for nine seasons and has done Dodger games both on radio and on television. As a member of the Dodger announcing staff Vin has called three World Series, 1953, 55 and 56 along with Mel Allen. Two of his big thrills were the game in 1955 calling the last 4½ innings when Johnny Podres pitched the Dodgers to the World's Championship and also calling the last half of the World's Series game in which Carl Erskine set the series strike-out record of 14, a record which still stands.

Vin also has done CBS football on the East Coast for seven seasons and did a half hour Saturday teen-ager sports show in New York.

LAST WEEK WE TOLD the stories of KMPC announcer Jerry Doggett and John Ramsey, who handles the mike chores at the Coliseum. This week we feature the number-one Voice of the Dodgers: ace sportscaster Vince Scully.

RECENTLY film star Danny Kaye stood along the first base line at the Los Angeles Coliseum during the the batting practice of the Los Angeles Dodgers earnestly chatting with a handsome Irish-American redhead whom many people mistakingly thought was Kaye's younger brother. The two talked for nearly half an hour and then broke up — Kaye going to his box alongside of home plate — and Vince Scully climbing into his KMPC booth to broadcast another game of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Actually it wasn't the first time that Vin had been mistaken for Danny's brother, for the two really are look-alikes. It goes a lot deeper than that for both are New Yorkers and all their lives have lived and died for their beloved Dodgers.

Scully Sees the World

Besides broadcasting Dodger baseball games Vin probably gets more kick out of traveling than anything else. When the Dodgers made their trip to the Orient in 1956, the first one on the plane was smiling and eager Vin Scully. And when the Dodgers packed their gear and headed back for the U.S.A. they weren't too surprised to see Vinny hustle up to an airline counter. Here he picked up a ticket for Hong Kong, Bangkok, Pakistan, Istanbul, Rome (where he had the honor of being in a special 14 guest audience with Pope Pius), and then onto Geneva; Paris, then a stopover to see the relatives in Dublin; onto London and then down to Southampton to board the Queen Mary for a leisurely junket back to New York.

Another milestone in Vin's young life is his recent marriage to beautiful Joan Crawford, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Crawford of Somerset, Massachusetts. Joan was one of America's top fashion models and all eyes turn when she enters upon the scene. The newly wedded Scully's have set themselves up in a wonderful Brentwood Village apartment and have plunged into California

HOW THE Lennon Sisters ARE GROWING UP

The four girls are really turning into charmers.

By Jack Holland

What is new with Diane, Peggy, Kathy, and Janet?

Have they really changed much in the last few years?

DON'T look now — but the Lennon Sisters are gradually becoming young ladies.

Take a picture of them as they were three years ago and look at them now. Naturally, they're taller, more poised and self-assured, but there are other changes not so obviously noticeable in these young charmers of Lawrence Welk's ABC-TV show.

Diane

Diane, who is 18, probably has made the most marked advancement as a young lady. She has always been a serious-minded girl whose main interest is in raising a family — and of late she has shown very definite interest in a young man whose name is Dick Cass.

Dick lives one block from Diane's home in Venice. He also comes from a large family as does Diane — he has seven brothers and sisters. He and the young Miss Lennon grew up in the same church parish. At the present, though, Dick is spending two and a half years in the service so nothing too definite can be settled for the time being.

Diane is making no commitments of any kind but no one will be too surprised if she and Dick should get married one day. And when — and if — she does marry him, you can be very certain her career will take a back seat. Her work has never been the important thing to her — or to any of the Lennons for that matter.

Peggy

It is in her growth as a young woman facing the prospects of having her own family that Diane has grown the most. Peggy, 17, has also changed.

In contrast to Diane, who is the old-fashioned type, Peggy is vivacious and interested in everything. Yet, almost paradoxically, she has talked about becoming a nun for some time. She still has this kind of life in mind but she has made no decisions as yet.

Her mother wonders, though, if Peggy will ever really be a nun. She notes that her daughter's favorite color is red and as she says, "I never saw a nun wear red."

DIANE, PEGGY, KATHY AND JANET Lennon help Lawrence Welk blow out the birthday candles as the show starts its fourth year on ABC-TV.

In the meantime, Peggy continues to be very popular at her school and engages in all the activities. She is also dating one boy in particular. He picks her up in his small sports car and takes her to school each day. Peggy enjoys the attention she gets and she does regard this boy with more interest than she used to, but she is not being the impulsive or giddy romanticist. She's taking her time about any romance. She is more secure within herself now and can make her decisions with more wisdom now.

Kathy

Kathy, who is 15, goes to the same school as does Peggy, but she rides the bus since Peggy's boy friend can't squeeze her into his car too. Kathy is a very pretty girl, yet she gets terribly embarrassed if anyone tells her she's attractive.

Recently, Kathy has begun to act with more grace and poise. Where she sort of stumbled along before she now is quite the young lady. She even likes to dress up at times whereas before she was something of a tomboy. However, she hasn't grown up so much that she has single dates. Whenever she goes with a boy it's always with a crowd.

Janet

Janet is the one who shows the least change. Only 12, she is still just a kid and one who gets very red-faced if anyone pays too much attention to her. If she's asked about boys, she just giggles which is par for a 12 year old's course. She is an inveterate tomboy, much preferring to be outside playing with one of her boy cousins. She has 43 cousins, incidentally.

Janet still doesn't talk too freely. She doesn't open up until she gets to know a person well. But, almost in contradiction, she loves to dance, especially jitterbug.

The Lennons have made their little changes as they have grown older, but they are still the same tightly-knit clan they have always been. Recently, they were offered a trip to Hawaii. They turned it down in favor of spending some time with their family and relatives at their uncle's place in Qjai.

In all respects, the needs and wants of the girls are simple. When Diane was asked when she planned to get her first mink coat, she said, with surprise, "Why, I don't need a mink coat — or even want one." This same lack of pretense has been shown in their insistent desire to remain at their home in Venice instead of moving to a swankier section like Beverly Hills.

Their idea of a great time is to go to the beach and have hamburgers and malts or tortillas. There, they usually indulge in some form of athletics — football or baseball or volley ball. Their other favorite pastime is dancing — any kind of dancing.

Each of the girls continues to have her specified chore at the house and each is an expert at changing diapers on

ALL DRESSED UP in their finery, the girls give ample proof that they are growing up and becoming very charming young ladies.

THE LENNON GIRLS, with Alice Lon, Myron Floren, Lawrence, and Pete Fountain pose around the big 4 sign as a reminder of the Welk show's long-time success on TV.

the young baby. They will, as a result of their responsibilities at home, go into marriage with some valuable lessons behind them.

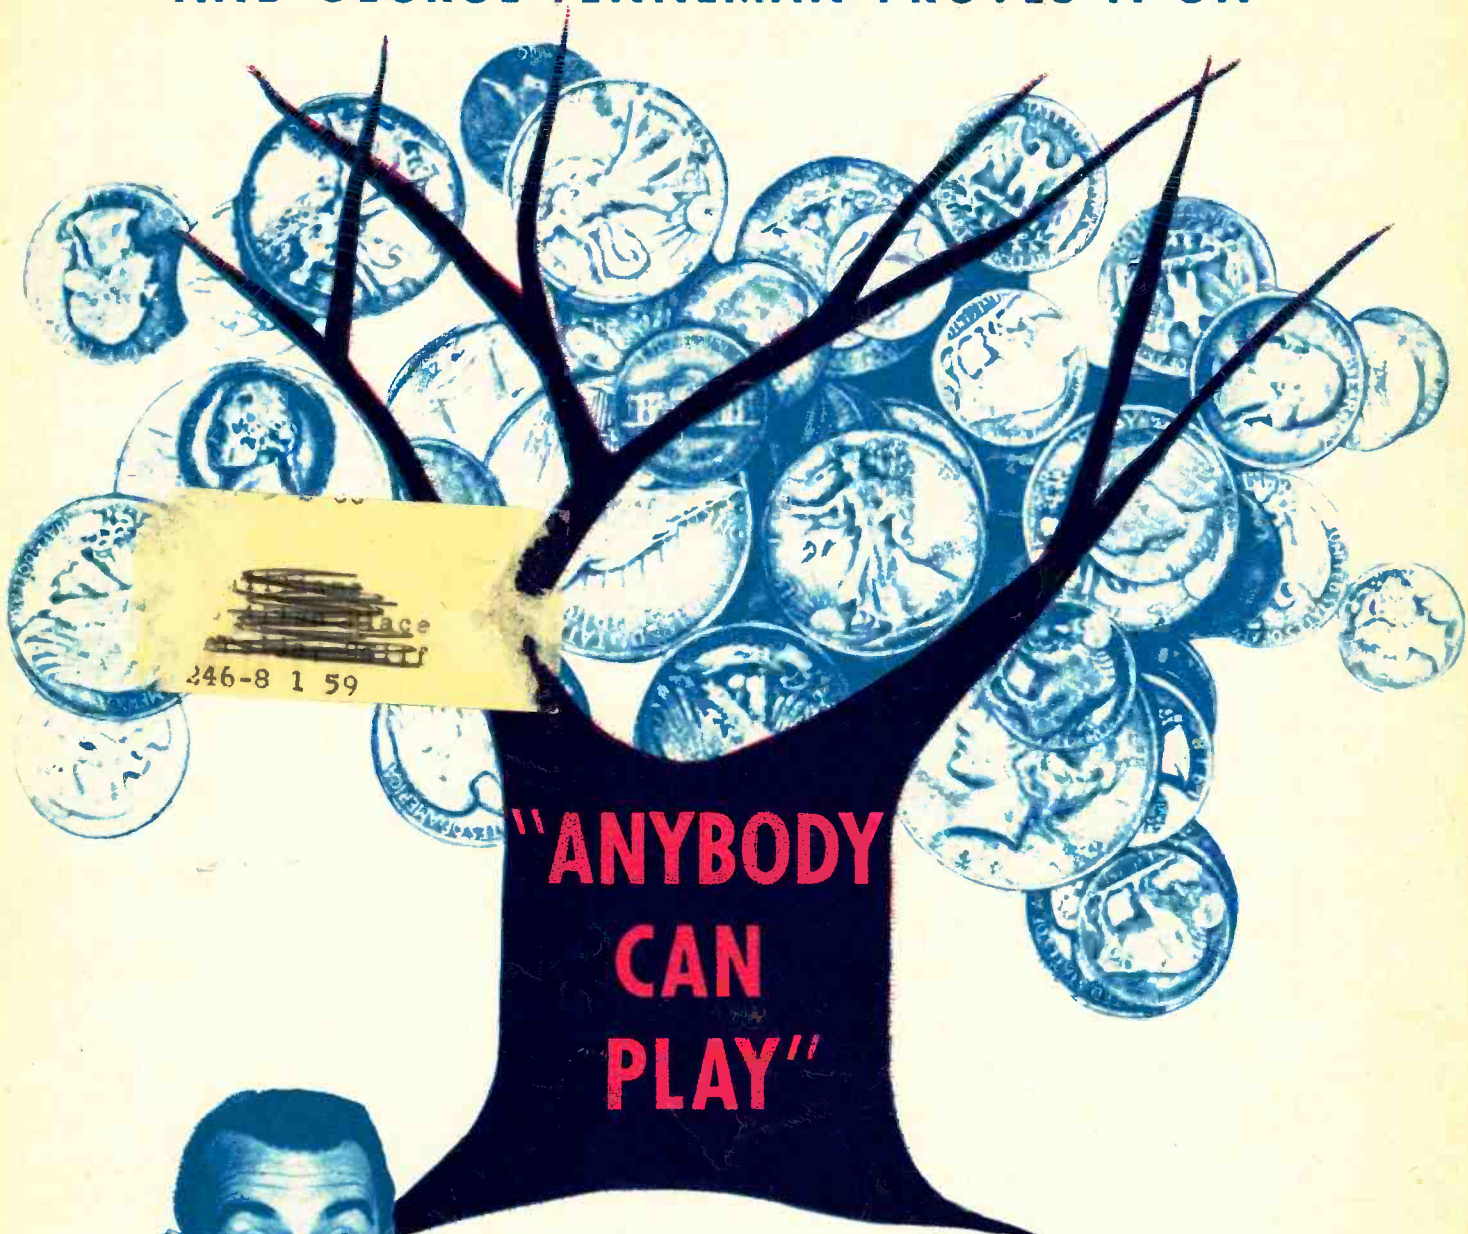

They have never regarded their career as anything special. To this day they are surprised when anyone asks them for an autograph and they rarely read any articles about themselves. Their big family is all they think about — or need.

The Lennon girls are facing the future unafraid, confident, and with enthusiasm. They haven't yet decided what they will be when they get older but they're not losing sleep over this now.

There is only one thing they're sure of about the years to come — that they will still think Perry Como is the greatest. About him they aren't in the least sane!
